Key Note Speaker- Introduction

Chandra Sri Ram was born and educated in India. She attended Church Park school in Chennai after which she attended Osmania University, taking a tripos in Botany, Zoology and Chemistry, a Bachelor of Journalism (First Class, Top of Class) and a Masters in Journalism. After a very brief career in journalism and public relations (during which she had an opportunity to interview Shri Morarji Desai shortly before he became Prime Minister), for almost two decades she was a professional Bharatanatyam dancer regularly performing at the prestigious Music and Dance Festival in Chennai, and internationally including San Francisco and New Zealand. In honour of her contributions to Bharatanatyam, and her long association with the Sabha, Krishna Gana Sabha named its library wing after her. Immediately following her career in Bharatanatyam she read law at the University of London and was called to the English Bar at Lincoln's Inn and to the Malaysian Bar. She has enjoyed taking regular speaking engagements and writing throughout her career on topics ranging from the arts to law and public affairs. Her most recent articles have been a review of the life of the eminent Malaysian lawyer and politician the late Karpal Singh published in the Commonwealth Lawyer, and an article published in Madras Musings on her grand-uncle Dr SR Ranganathan, the pioneering information scientist and father of Indian Library Science. Apart from English she knows six languages including Sanskrit, and has achieved the prestigious Diplome en Langue Francais (DELF).

Prof. S. R. Ranganathan (1892-1972)

Prof. S. R. Ranganathan has been affectionately described as the Father of Library Science in India, on account of his tireless efforts to professionalize library education in India. Trained in the area of Mathematics and Librarianship, and assisted by scholars such as Dr. Kuppaswami Shastri, Ranganathan synergized and streamlined the intellectual energy of that time to transform a less-known discipline into a full-edged profession. Dr. Ranganathan could simplify the process of library classification by formulating a number of canons, guiding principles, and postulates that provided a sound theoretical framework for this emerging discipline. His major contribution to Library Science includes his academic endeavours to institute a Master of Library Science Program in 1948 and to herald a doctoral research program in 1950, both at the University of Delhi. These were the first higher degree programs in Library Science offered in India or any of the Commonwealth countries.

His intellectual acumen and professionalism are reflected in the plethora of his publications that no other library scientist even as of now can dream of. He published over 50 books and 1,000 papers on all aspects of Library Science and was closely associated with internationally acclaimed library journals. He will always be remembered for his pioneering efforts, towering personality and his seminal contribution to Library Science that includes his five laws of Library Science codifying the whole gamut of library operations in five simple statements:

- Books are for use
- Every reader his/her book
- Every book its reader
- Save the time of the reader
- (The) library is a growing organism

He was an important presence in a number of international conferences delivering scores of lectures on Library Science. This is in addition to his significant role in setting the policy for the United Nations Library. His relentless efforts were recognized by the whole world, which showered different awards on this great son of India. They included the Honorary Presidency of the International Conference on Classification Research, held in Elshore, Denmark. The Government of India also recognized his painstaking efforts in Knowledge Organization; he was bestowed the titles of Rao Sahib and the Padma Shri in 1935 and 1957 respectively. He received Honorary Doctorates from a number of national and international universities including the University of Delhi (1948) and the University of Pittsburgh, USA. (1965). Awards came to him even from the land of Melvil Dewey; the Margaret Mann Citation in Cataloging and Classification of the American Library Association (ALA) in 1965. International Federation of Library Association, the umbrella organization of all library associations across the globe, chose New Delhi as its conference venue for the 1992 conference in recognition of the centenary celebrations of this great classificationist of all times.
