

Celebrations of Saraswati Puja in Central Library

Dear all as you know that in our Indian culture Saraswati Puja is a Hindu festival dedicated to Goddess Saraswati, the deity of knowledge, wisdom, arts, and learning. It is typically celebrated in various parts of India, especially in educational institutions, during the spring season, usually in late January or early February.

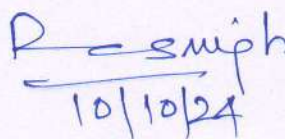

Saraswati Puja at Sharda University's Central Library sounds like a significant and cherished tradition. It's heartening to hear that the entire university community, including library staff, faculty members, HODs (Heads of Departments), and students, actively participates in this auspicious event every year.

Saraswati Puja holds a special place in Indian culture as it symbolizes the reverence for knowledge, learning, and wisdom, which are essential aspects of academic and personal growth. The involvement of prominent figures like the University's Pro VC Dr. Parma Nand and Library advisor Dr. R. C. Singh further highlights the importance placed on this occasion within the institution.

Such celebrations not only foster a sense of unity and cultural pride but also encourage a conducive learning environment where values of education and intellect are upheld and celebrated. It's commendable that Sharda University continues to uphold and cherish these traditions, making the Central Library a hub of cultural and academic enrichment through events like Saraswati Puja.
