2. Event description:

A fantastic initiative by Swami Vivekananda Library at Sharda University! Organizing a seminar on JoVE e-resource shows proactive support for enhancing students' knowledge and skills, especially those in the medical field where visual demonstrations of experiments and techniques are highly beneficial.

JoVE's video-based format is particularly advantageous for medical students as it allows them to observe and learn complex procedures in a more intuitive manner. By participating in the seminar, students likely gained insights into how they can utilize JoVE to deepen their understanding of various scientific methodologies and stay updated with the latest research techniques.

JoVE offers two main types of content:

1. Journal Articles: These are peer-reviewed articles that include a detailed written description of experimental procedures along with video demonstrations. This format helps researchers to understand experimental techniques more effectively by watching them in action.
2. Video Protocols: These are step-by-step video demonstrations of experimental procedures. They are typically accompanied by a written protocol outlining the materials and methods used. Video protocols are valuable resources for researchers who want to learn new techniques or replicate experiments in their own labs.

JoVE covers a wide range of disciplines, including biology, chemistry, medicine, engineering, and physics. It is particularly useful for researchers who are visual learners or who want to ensure they are performing techniques correctly by observing them firsthand.

Such seminars not only equip students with practical knowledge but also encourage them to explore innovative resources that can significantly impact their academic and professional growth. It's commendable that Sharda University took the initiative to host this event, demonstrating their commitment to enriching the educational experience of their students.
