School of Law aims at equipping its Law students not only with the traditional professional expertise to become successful advocates and solicitors but for a wide-ranging career options viz. business partnerships, managerial assignments, politics, diplomacy, social work, consultancy assignments, teaching and research work through its wide based curriculum with an aim to develop intellectual competence and analytical skills coupled with ethical sense of role and purpose.

ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Conflicts and disputes co-exist with the society. We cannot avoid conflicts but what is more important is how we manage or handle such conflicts. War/Legal battle is one of the methods of resolution, but we have learnt with our past experiences that it is a costly affair and often unsatisfactory.

Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) is an alternative to the adversarial system. Jurisprudence of ADR lies under sec. 89 of CPC, Order 10 Rule 1A, 1B and 1C, In the Constitution of India Art. 39A and many other statutes like Industrial Disputes Act, Commercial Courts Act, Hindu Marriage Act, Consumer Protection Act, Motor Vehicles Act, etc. recommend ADR mechanism to resolve disputes. At present, the judiciary is clogged with over 3 crore cases pending in various courts all over the country. Covid-19 pandemic has further increased the amount of pendency. The existing judicial system finds it difficult to cope with the ever-increasing burden of litigation. Such state of affairs calls for ADR to step in where the justice system fails, because, as the legal maxim goes "Justice delayed is justice denied"

Arbitration, Mediation, Negotiation, Conciliation, Lok Adalat, Settlement of Disputes etc. are the various methods for settling disputes which have received worldwide recognition and are applied successfully, as they settle disputes in a speedy and amicable manner.

OBJECTIVES

- To analyze critically to the approach of judiciary in implementation of ADR
- To identify and understand the key challenges in effective implementation of ADR at various levels.
- To explore and recognize role of law and society in dispute resolution.
- To create awareness about importance of ADR as a part of justice dispensing system
- To strengthen the implementation of ADR effectively
- To equip the law students and legal professionals with practical aspect of ADR techniques to opt independent career options
- To look for futuristic assessment of best practice in the area of ADR and ODR

EXPECTED OUTCOME

- The present seminar has been conceptualized with the objective of appreciating progress made by India in the sphere of law; while creating space for discussion on matters pertaining to legal issues concerning implementation of Alternative Dispute Resolution mechanism in India at various levels.
- In this background there is an incessant call to hold seminars, conferences, workshops, symposia and discussions to elicit valuable inputs from the ground so as to effectively shed light on the usage of the best practices of dispute resolution techniques in India.
- The Seminar aims to enhance the understanding of the legal issues related to dispute resolution techniques while providing an updated account of law incorporating the recent amendments in the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.
- This National Seminar offers an opportunity to experts from various disciplines comprising of Researchers, Academicians, Law Experts, Negotiators, Diplomats, and students to come together and share their valuable opinions.
